About myself

With 10 years of strategy consulting and 18 years as a senior executive and divisional board member, I bring a wealth of leadership experience from the field - especially from larger organisations with different cultures and levels of maturity. My passion is to support leaders understand and develop themselves and their organisations in order to transform them and achieve sustainable success.

My understanding of coaching; coaching focus

I offer customised solutions that foster self-awareness, enhance leadership skills and unlock performance potential in dynamic corporate environments. My coaching approach is based on a collaborative and results-orientated thinking partnership. I create a supportive and empowering environment that enables leaders to reflect, recognise their full potential, overcome obstacles and achieve their professional and business goals.

Situations in which I am effective as a coach

Develop leadership: I help leaders develop their own leadership style that inspires teams, encourages innovation and drives organisational success.
Build leader authenticity: I work with leaders to identify their personal values and strengths to develop the presence and authenticity they need to succeed in any professional context.
Create strategic and cultural vision: I work with executives to clarify their strategic and cultural goals and develop actionable paths that align with their values.
